Call for Sponsorship

The EECS Division (comprising the Departments of CSA, ECE, EE, and ESE), the Dept. of Computational and Data Sciences (CDS) and the Robert Bosch Centre for Cyber Physical Systems (RBCCPS) are pleased to announce "EECS Research Students Symposium 2019", the tenth in the series of annual symposiums. The aim of the symposium is to provide a forum for senior research students to showcase their work and to foster interactive collaborations among students, faculty, and researchers from academia, industry, and Govt. research labs.

The event will showcase the ongoing research and innovation work at these five departments and center through poster presentations by final year Ph.D students of CDS, CSA, ECE, EE, ESE and RBCCPS. The highlights include invited talks by research and leaders and talks by young faculty members of the departments. The second day of the event will be Technology Day and will feature talks by industry leaders, presentations by startups, and an alumni event.

Areas and Themes

The principal themes this year would be: AI & Machine Learning; and Data Science. Other themes include: Communication and Signal Processing; Networks; Computer Systems and Software; Computational Science; Theoretical Computer Science; Electronic Design; Image and Video processing; Cyber-physical Systems; Power Electronics, Power Systems and High Voltage Engineering
